Letter #147

Don't Vote. Nobody Needs You

There are some Christians who are telling anyone that will listen to their strong convictions against voting for Donald Trump. Let's see, he said he will stop illegal immigration, rebuild the military, stop importing Muslims wholesale, repeal the Johnson amendment, cancel Obama care. I don't know, I thought these were good things. They point to his "evil" life as their reason. Oh, well I believe George W. Bush was far more moral than Donald Trump...and he involved us in a war (23 years ago) that we're still in. He didn't rebuild our military but told Muslims they were great people. Quite an improvement!

But if you're planning to not voting for Trump that's fine. Don't think for a second I'm trying to change your mind. I'm not. Why? Because this election you're not needed. Trump has brought out so many new voters that you can stay home on Nov. 8.

He's Already Done It!

Donald trump hasn't even been elected yet and he's already influenced the economy! Because of Trumps' pressure against American companies sending jobs out of the country Ford Motor Co. has announced it will build it's new Bronco in Michigan.

Think about that. The man is nothing more than a candidate for the presidency and he already has companies altering their production plans. Now THAT is a leader.

While trump is bringing jobs back to the USA Hellary is happily talking about her plans to make everyone that works in the coal industry (NOT just miners) unemployed.

Muslims & Bible Believers

I have a loose rule-of-thumb that I always consider when "taking a stand" on some seemingly important issue: Do I want to take the stand that a lost, Christ-rejecter would take.

Example: Imagine a Bible believer and a Bible corrector arguing over whether God has preserved the Bible without error. (You know: James White & Sam Gipp) As they argue their cases they are observed by a lost man. Finally the lost man looks at Gipp and says, "You're all wet. This guy's right. God never preserved the Bible perfectly." (King James opponents would be wise to consider this scenario.)

So, that leads me to this, do I want to take a stand on this country that a murderous, Christ-hating Muslim would take. Yet strangely, there are some Bible believers who have the same view of this country as do the Muslims. Muslims shout "Death to America! America is the Great Satan! God will judge America!" which exactly describes the feeling of a few Bible believers who think hating America is the godly thing to do. If the Muslims heard them they would whole-heartedly agree with them. Do I want to take that stand?

A List of America-haters

1. Public schools
2. Higher education
3. The News Media
4. Hollywood
5. Liberal judges
6. ACLU & crooked defense lawyers
7. Environmentalists
8. The Immigration & Naturalization Service
9. Muslims
10. Some Bible believers

Meeting the 7000

Pastor Rob Carlson

Pastor Carlson pastors the Golden Plains Baptist Church in Portage-la-Prairie, Manitoba, Canada. Bro. Carlson is a Canadian, not an American missionary. Bro. Carlson was raised in a Christian home and has never wavered from the convictions of his youth. He is a combination of wisdom and humor. He founded Golden Plains BC 26 years ago and it is one of Canada's great churches.

You might remember Bro. Carlson in prayer. He has a rare kidney condition and is having a kidney transplant this month. Sick as he has been it has not prevented him from fulfilling his duties as pastor.

An Idea

Pastor Greg Rinehart pastors Bible Believers Baptist Church of Parker, Fl. Here is a project he did. He gathered pictures from his congregation of what they looked like before they got saved. Then he took pictures of them since their salvation and turned both into slides. He set them then to music in a "Before & After" layout, with occasional Scripture references. It is the most moving presentation I've ever seen. It is great for New Year's Eve. Call Bro Rinehart at: 850-871-4828.

Fight On!

Jacques "Pino" Fournaise was born in 1747 (possibly 1745) and died in 1871. That's right. He lived to be 124 years old. And live he did! He left his native Canada for the young United States when he was 32. He worked on the flatboats that plied the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers until he was 68 (1815). He got into a scrape with a wounded buffalo that did a dance on him before it died. With various injuries including a broken leg, he spent the next 22 days crawling to his camp 20 miles away. His friends set his leg the best they could but he never walked right after that. In 1824 (77 years old) he was with Etienne Provost's party when they fought off a band of raiding Bannock Indians up in Utah. At 85 (1832) he was still mobile enough to travel to the Mountain Man's Rendezvous west of the Teton Mountains in Idaho. The next year he was surprised by a Bannock war party near Henry's Fork of the Snake River in northern Idaho. He hid among some willows as the Indians beat the bushes trying to find him. Unsuccessful, they decided to make camp...right next to his hideout! One Indian actually brushed against him in the dark. Once they were asleep "Pino" drug himself (his legs wouldn't work due to the many hours of immobility) into the trees, rubbed his tired legs till they worked again and hobbled off into the night. He spent the next six years trapping. Then in 1839 (92 years old) he decided to join John Fremont on an exploration of the Upper Missouri and Minnesota Rivers. In 1845 (98 or possibly 100 years old) he moved to a log cabin east of Fort Laramie in Wyoming where he lived alone. He grew vegetables, berries and flowers. In 1869 (122 years old) he moved to Kansas City to be near some beloved friends into a fine brick house they had built for him. In 1871, at 124 years of age, he suffered sunstroke and died. Live on!

Designated Villain

I have not seen the new TV series "Designated Survivor" where Keiffer Sutherland is the new president of the US due to the Executive, Legislative and Judicial branches of the government all being killed in a terrorist attack during a join session of Congress. I will only predict that ULTIMATELY the real villains will be corrupt Americans, probably politicians and likely Conservatives. Why? Because that's the group the leftists who run Hollywood hate and are dedicated to vilifying. I don't care if I ever see an episode. But I am soooo tired of Hollywood having such a one-tracked mind on who the evil people are in this world.

A Nation of Religious Fanatics

History has shown that there is nothing more bloody than a religious war. Why? Because religious people are people of conviction and people of conviction are ready to both die or kill for their convictions. Today everyone in the country holds some kind of "conviction" about food, water, health, medical care, helping the poor. That means if a shooting war starts it will be conviction-driven religious fanatics against conviction-driven religious fanatics...deadly!
